Washington, D.C., February 7, 2017 – National Association of Manufacturers (NAM) President and CEO Jay Timmons issued the following statement after the Army Corps of Engineers announced it will grant permission to complete the Dakota Access Pipeline project (DAPL):

“This green light is welcome news for manufacturers. Such investments in America’s energy infrastructure create tremendous opportunities for the manufacturers who supply these projects. The construction of the Dakota Access Pipeline will boost manufacturing across the country. Building new energy infrastructure makes our country more competitive, creates jobs and helps make life more affordable for our families —common goals that all Americans support.”

-NAM-

The National Association of Manufacturers (NAM) is the largest manufacturing association in the United States, representing small and large manufacturers in every industrial sector and in all 50 states. Manufacturing employs more than 12 million men and women, contributes $2.17 trillion to the U.S. economy annually, has the largest economic impact of any major sector and accounts for more than three-quarters of private-sector research and development. The NAM is the powerful voice of the manufacturing community and the leading advocate for a policy agenda that helps manufacturers compete in the global economy and create jobs across the United States.
