Welcome Message from the Chairman

Chuck Robbins

Chief Executive Officer
Cisco

As two of the world's largest economies, the U.S. and Japan have a relationship that is very important to each other as well as to global trade and economic development. Both countries are leaders in innovation and technology, and U.S. and Japanese companies play a major role as investors in the Asia-Pacific region and around the world.

The U.S.-Japan Business Council (USJBC), an affiliate of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, is comprised of major U.S. companies that do business in Japan, and is the primary U.S.-based business organization that promotes strong economic ties between the two countries. Our core mission is to advance U.S.-Japan business and government ties, to identify and expand new opportunities, and to facilitate growth across sectors including digital economy, energy and infrastructure, financial services, healthcare innovation, travel, tourism, and transportation.

The USJBC has a strong track record of advocating for policies that have helped transform the U.S.-Japan economic relationship, resulting in a partnership between the two economies that is cooperative, constructive, and serves as a model for cross-border business relationships across the Asia-Pacific region and beyond. As Chairman of the USJBC, I look forward to building on the long history of the Council, and will strive to forge new opportunities for innovation and cooperation in ways that deliver growth and prosperity. I invite businesses of all sizes and sectors to join us to share your vision, leadership, and international business experience to further the Council's mission and expand two-way American business, trade and investment with Japan.

Chuck Robbins is Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Cisco. He assumed chairmanship of the USJBC on November 4, 2016, following former USJBC chairman Dr. John Lechleiter, President, Chairman and CEO of Eli Lilly and Company.
